

New Phonics and Spelling Rules

When we are counting, we pronounce consonants at the end of the numbers: six, sept, huit, dix. However, when these numbers become determiners introducing a noun, their final consonant becomes silent eg six pulls, huit chapeaux, dix tee-shirts. When we add an s or x to make a plural eg un pull / trois pulls; un chapeau / des chapeaux, we cannot hear the s or x: they are silent. Sept is an exception: sept chapeaux. (We still pronounce the t). We also pronounce the final t in tee-shirt as it comes from English.

In a bi-lingual dictionary, there are two halves – English to French and French to English. The words that stand out at the top of the page are called headwords – they help us to navigate quickly.
